Unconditional Stay After 7 Years

As you navigate the journey towards long-term residency in Hong Kong, transitioning from the NCIES visa to unconditional stay marks a significant milestone. Our service is designed to guide you through this milestone transition, ensuring you meet all requirements and maintain your residency status without interruption.

Understanding Unconditional Stay

Unconditional stay, granted after seven years of continuous NCIES visa status, allows you the freedom to uplift your investment and enjoy the benefits of long-term residency in Hong Kong. Despite its name, unconditional stay carries one essential condition: you must make at least one landing in Hong Kong every 12 months to retain this status. It's a safeguard to ensure your ongoing connection to the city, albeit with the understanding that the Director of Immigration retains the authority to revoke this status under other exceptional circumstance.

Your Pathway to Unconditional Stay

Achieving unconditional stay involves a clear set of criteria:

- Continuous NCIES Visa: You must have held the NCIES visa continuously for at least seven years.
- Investment Portfolio Maintenance: Throughout this period, your qualifying investment portfolio must have been retained without interruption.
- Legal and Financial Compliance: You should have a clean legal record, with no criminal convictions as an NCIES visa holder, and no outstanding taxation liabilities in Hong Kong or otherwise present a security concern.

Ensuring Your Eligibility

Securing unconditional stay status is straightforward for those who diligently maintain their NCIES visa and adhere to the investment and legal requirements. Our role is to ensure that you navigate this process smoothly, offering expert advice and support to meet all necessary conditions for transitioning to unconditional stay.
